1957: NEW, REGIONAL-TYPE AMERICANS
ABROAD COURSES ADDED

Practical information and advice for personnel planning to go abroad will be made available to many more employees next year.

25X1A6a The Americans Abroad courses during the past 12 months have been concerned only with individual countries, [REDACTED]; in 1957, in addition to these country-type courses, regional-type courses are being offered for employees going elsewhere in Western Europe, the Far East, and the Middle East. (See the Area Training Program amended schedule in the July 1956 OTR Bulletin and the "Courses, Activities, and Programs" section in various issues.)

25X1A6a The country-type course has been found to be feasible only when a sizable and steady flow of personnel to a particular country can be anticipated. Yet, the practical indoctrination thus far given for promoting rapid adjustment to living in [REDACTED] has been recognized throughout the Agency as a "natural," and the demand for extending the geographic coverage of the Americans Abroad courses has grown.

In the new regional-type courses, of the 15 hours of scheduled course time, only a part - 7 to 10 hours - will be devoted to formal sessions in this type of course. These sessions will be devoted to such across-the-board subjects as implications of becoming foreigners, medical advice, legal implications, processing problems, locational orientation, strategic importance of the region to the U.S., regional travel opportunities, regional social customs and attitudes. →

The balance of the course time - 5 to 8 hours - will be reserved for oral indoctrination, given by recent returnees from the country to which the students are being assigned, tailored in so far as possible to individual student needs. In part, this indoctrination will be supplemented with directed reading on the country concerned.

It is particularly important that you enroll two full weeks in advance for attendance in these new regional type courses. See your Training Officer well in advance.

SPECIAL LECTURE SERIES:
IN THE MAJOR LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD

10 OCTOBER TO
1 MAY 1957

25X1A9a All CIA personnel interested in improving their language proficiency and area knowledge are invited to attend a series of foreign language lectures (see Lecture Schedule below) presented Wednesdays at 1530 hours, in room 1-82, Quarters Eye. Information regarding the series may be obtained by calling [REDACTED] extension 2381 or 3629. You will, of course, obtain authorization from your supervisor prior to attendance at any one of the lectures.

Recognizing the need for increased knowledge in the language and area fields, the Office of Training is offering this series of lectures to be given in the major languages of the world by CIA personnel. Topics of particular interest, both to analysts and personnel in operations, have been selected. The purpose is twofold: To advance your knowledge of foreign languages; to increase your insight into the understanding of foreign peoples - their patterns of thought and behavior.

A special feature of the program is the amount of attention devoted to the theme "Understanding and Dealing With Foreign Peoples." Individual lecturers will speak on how to understand and deal with the Russians, the Japanese, the Latin Americans, etc. In this way, much of the "know-how" gained by our personnel through years of experience will be transmitted to you. As a result, it is hoped that in your contacts with the different nationalities, both here and abroad, you will be able to establish more effective rapport and attain better results.

Summaries of the lectures, in English, will be provided in the "Understanding and Dealing With Foreign People" talks, and also in a few other instances. The lecture in Arabic, due to the very limited number of Agency personnel able to understand this language, will be given in English with a brief summary following in Arabic.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE PROFICIENCY TESTS

The Foreign Language Proficiency Tests are for those persons who already have some knowledge of a given language, and are designed to test how well a person reads, writes, and speaks that language. Individuals applying for intermediate or advanced study of a language may be required by the Office of Training to take the proficiency test in that language in order to determine just what further training will be most rewarding. The written part of the test (covering reading and writing) requires about 3 - 4 hours and is given in the morning. The oral part requires about 15 minutes for each person and is given in the afternoon. Individuals may elect, or be required to take tests in reading, writing, or speaking, or any combination of these capabilities. All tests are administered on Wednesday. Call extension 3275, at least one week prior to the date of a test, to arrange an appointment.
